Dear Friends:

It was a pleasure to see old friends and meet new ones at the fifth Asian Women Neurosurgical Association's meeting in Hong Kong. Dr. Pze-ching Tan superbly organized the meeting and theme which was "Women Neurosurgeons in the New Millennium."

Female neurosurgeons from all across Asia provided us with insights and updates as to how neurosurgery is practiced in their countries. Issues of resource allocation, access to care, and professional advancement under the various administrative systems and forms of government were all discussed. Dr. Peter McL. Black, Professor and Chairman at Brigham Women's and Children's Medical Center, Harvard Medical School, gave a very interesting talk on his perspective and the role that women are making within the profession in the United States.

I look forward to maintaining professional and personal ties with many of my colleagues with whom I connected with at this meeting and invite all of you to come to the next major American neurosurgical meeting, the American Association of Neurological Surgeons Meeting, to be held April 26 - May 1, 2003 at the San Diego Convention Center in San Diego California.

Best regards,

Gail Rosseau, M.D.
